

POPE CALLS PIO! PIO! ALMOST CONTINUOUSLY

Is Growing Weaker Every Minute, Although His Heart Action Continues Strong.

IS BARELY ALIVE

Reports Issued Show That the Brave Pontiff Is Steadily Drifting Into the Great Beyond.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)
Paris, July 16.—A correspondent of the LaPatrie cables that he was at the vatican this morning and that while in an ante room he heard the pope call out "Pio, Pio." He was then ejected from the vatican.

At Two P. M.
Rome, 2 p. m., July 16.—The pope's condition remains unchanged. Dr. Rosconi, this afternoon, stated that his holiness' heart was strong enough to continue its actions for four days longer. He had decided to postpone the action regarding the operation until this evening when a consultation will be held.

Bulletin
From bulletin issued at 9 o'clock it seems that the pope is sinking rapidly. It reads: Pope passed a very restless, sleepless night. General condition of his holiness shows no other modifications than greater frequency in respiration due to increased gathering of fluid in pleura; pulsation, 88; temperature, 36.3 centigrade; respiration, 36. Unofficially reported pontiff's body covered sweat, presaging the approach of the end.

Looks Like Corpse.
One of the doctors in attendance on the pontiff gave a graphic word picture of Pope Leo as he appears. "That smile which lighted up the pontiff's face, even in extreme age, has disappeared, probably forever. The skin is drawn tightly over the bony framework of his face, leaving the once bright eyes staring dimly from the deeply sunken sockets. A grayish pallor overspreads his countenance, but the most noticeable ravage wrought by his present disease is the drooping of the lower jaw, which has made the pope's features take on the fixed rigidity of death."

Throughout Wednesday the precincts of the vatican were comparatively quiet and the immediate vicinity of the sickroom showed none of the evidences and alarm so apparent the day before.

Cardinals Call.
In marked contrast to previous days, the patient was kept in almost absolute seclusion, only one person besides the physicians in immediate attendance gaining admission. This one was Monsignore Pifferi, the pope's confessor. Others came to the antechamber, including Cardinals Sallio and Serafino Vannutelli, but they did not press for admission to the sickroom, being aware of the doctor's earnest wish to afford the patient every opportunity of avoiding exertion and mental effort.

Doctors Assemble Early.
The assembling of the doctors at 5:30 o'clock, two hours before the usual time, was not due to any alarming turn in the Pope's condition, but through the wish thoroughly to go over every detail of the situation.

The moderate tone of the bulletin which followed the visit gave assurance that the patient's condition was practically unchanged, while the expression that the depression of his strength had not increased afforded a slight note of relief.

In the evening his holiness complained of a slight uneasiness in the chest, but that he had not yet completely given up hope was indicated by his remark that he expected the oppression of his chest to pass off in a few days.

During the day the Pope drank a few drops of the healing waters from the shrine of Lourdes, several bottles of which were sent to the vatican by the French bishop in whose see Lourdes is situated.

A local paper gravely announces that from the moment Pope Leo swallowed the water an improvement in his condition became apparent.

End Is Not Far Distinct.
When Dr. Mazzoni first entered the Pope's sick room in the morning he found his holiness in almost the same condition as the night before. Pope Leo said: "I feel better than I did yesterday morning."

On leaving the vatican Dr. Mazzoni answered, "It cannot be called so."

"Then it is near?" was asked. To this Dr. Mazzoni replied: "In order not to make a mistake, let us say it is not far distant."

At 10:16 a. m. Dr. Laponi left the vatican to pay another visit to his daughter, who is suffering from a fever. He then said that the Pope might linger several days.

Official news from the vatican says that in his delirium the Pope spoke especially of pilgrimages and recited disconnectedly Latin verses. He often seemed panic-stricken, crying to Dr. Laponi, his valet, Contra, and Monsignore Angeli, one of his secretaries: "Where are you? Do not abandon me."

Delirium Ceases.
The delirium ceased entirely at 4 o'clock p. m., when his holiness again revived. He was given four spoonfuls of meat broth and masticated some beef before swallowing it.

From midnight up to 5 o'clock in the morning the pontiff was constantly drowsy. The urine had become less in quantity. Pope Leo in the last twenty-four hours having passed thirty cubic centimeters. The doctors think death will come through exhaustion and anaemia instead of as a result of cardiac paralysis.

Dr. Laponi being shown a dispatch published in the United States to the effect that a bacteriological examination of the fluid from the pleura revealed evidences of cancer in the pleura, replied that there was not a word of truth in the report.

ARREST FOLLOWS WIFE'S DECEASE

J. H. Wallace Is Held in London, Pending an Investigation as to the Cause.

London, July 16.—J. H. Wallace, formerly secretary to the late Sir Francis Cook, who recently achieved notoriety here in connection with his suits for libel against Lady Cook (formerly Miss Tennessee Claflin of New York), has been arrested in connection with the mysterious death of his wife. She was found dead in her flat, while Wallace was lying on the floor with his throat cut. Wallace was taken before a magistrate this morning and charged with attempted suicide. When in the dock he was seized with a fit. The case was adjourned. His wife's death is supposed to have been due to heart disease.

PETITION TO CZAR REMAINS AS DRAFTED

Conference Between President and Jews Was Entirely Satisfactory to Members of B'nai B'rith.

New York, July 16.—In accordance with the understanding at Oyster Bay Leo N. Levi has given out the following statement regarding the conference between the president and the Jewish committee of the Kishineff petition:

"The conference was entirely satisfactory to us. Our views and those of the president are in perfect accord. It has been decided that it would not be well at present to make public any details of the conference."

"Some erroneous impressions have been formed, which it is important to correct immediately. This is not easy within the limitations imposed by state considerations. I venture, however, to say that the petition has not been modified in any particular; that no reason exists for discontinuing the signing of the petitions; that it is desired that they should be signed for a week longer and then sent to me; and that the most perfect accord exists between us and the president. Our course has his full approval, and his is in every respect just as we desire it to be. There are no differences of any kind whatsoever, and there has been no receding. I have wired to members of the executive committee of the B'nai B'rith throughout the country that the situation is entirely satisfactory and to go ahead with the lists, but to send them in so as to reach me in ten days."

"It should be distinctly understood that the petition is neither a protest nor a remonstrance. It does not seek to interfere in Russian affairs. Finally, it is not a petition by Jews, but in behalf of them. It is a petition by Americans regardless of religious affiliations."

LONG DEBATE IS JUST PREVENTED

Balfour Stops Chamberlain's Discussion on the Proposed Fiscal Change.

London, July 16.—Premier Balfour, in the house of commons today, refused to give the house facilities for a full debate on Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's proposed fiscal changes. The matter was brought up by Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, former chancellor of the exchequer, who was supported by Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, the liberal leader. Mr. Balfour said he did not think any useful purpose would be served by an abstract discussion addressed to no particular motion; that the matter had already been debated several times under similar conditions. If Sir Henry raised a debate by introducing a vote of censure of the government he said he would grant the facilities desired.

At a house dinner of the National Liberal club tonight, Earl Carrington presiding, Bourke Cochran, the guest of honor, delivered a speech denouncing Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's fiscal proposals. The action of the committee of the club in inviting Mr. Cochran is the subject of protests by numerous members of the club because of his anti-British and pro-Boer speeches.

PERSIAN TREATY IS PUBLISHED

Lansdowne's British Monroe Doctrine Subject of the Blue Book.

London, July 16.—The treaty between Great Britain and Persia, which was hinted at by the Marquis of Lansdowne in his speech in the house of lords May 7, when he proclaimed the "British Monroe doctrine" in the Persian Gulf, is made the subject of a blue book issued today. The treaty was concluded at Teheran Feb. 9, and was ratified May 27. It grants the most favored national treatment to each country, abolishes the Persian 5 per cent. export duty upon all except a few articles and abolishes the system of farming out the customs duties, replacing this system by government customs officers and warehouses. It undertakes to allow British merchandise any reduction conceded to merchandise imported from Russia.

Washington, July 16.—China has notified the state department that it will open several ports in Manchuria; two at once. Russia has signified its approval of the plan. The move is one of a signal victory for the United States, and shows that no acrimony exists at St. Petersburg over the Kishineff petition.

CHICAGO MOB ARE RIOTING

Two Thousand Sympathizers Hoot at Kellogg Switchboard Co's Wagons Today.

POLICE GUARDING

Hoodlums Throw Bricks—One Policeman Is Injured by Blow on the Head.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)
Chicago, Ill., July 16.—A mob of two thousand people this morning assembled outside the Kellogg Switchboard works and hooted and yelled at the wagons as they started for the freight depots with heavy loads. Police were on every wagon and this was the only thing that saved the drivers from injury.

Mob Violent
At one place the mob became violent and sent a shower of bricks towards the wagons. One of the policemen was badly cut by a flying missile and was removed to the county hospital. The police then charged the mob and drove them off. Several blockades were broken and many drivers were arrested for disorderly conduct.

Heavy Guards
Every wagon that left the works today was heavily guarded by police and detectives and they acted under orders from Chief O'Neill to see that order was kept and that the streets were not blocked. The strikers are growing angrier every day and a conflict is looked for when the non-union men go home this evening.

FOR ROOSEVELT WITHOUT PARTY

Miners of Pennsylvania Will Show Their Gratitude to the President.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 16.—A quiet poll of the leaders and members of District No. 1 of the United Mine Workers shows them favorably to the nomination of Judge George Gray for the presidency in 1904 as a second choice, their first choice being President Roosevelt, to whom they pay homage because of his effort in bringing about a settlement of the big strike. The miners refer with pride to the work of Judge Gray, but deem his nomination, if made at this time, the result of inopportune efforts of his friends. One of the big leaders ranking next to President Mitchell said today that the miners would support President Roosevelt for a second term, casting aside all party lines.

"It would be base ingratitude," he said for the 145,000 men of the anthracite region to pledge support to anyone else in view of what the president has brought about. Judge Gray is one of the best friends labor ever made, but the fact that Roosevelt allowed a political dynasty to be set aside for the benefit of the miners of the anthracite region entitles him to the first consideration of the miners. He will receive the undivided support of the union men throughout this region and the bituminous men will rally to the standard before election day.

CZAR STOPS THE BRUTAL CUDGELS

Will Not Allow Cat-o-Nine Tails to Be Used Longer in Punishing Prisoners.

St. Petersburg, July 16.—In a leading article the Birzhevia Vedomosti says: "The czar has abolished the hardest remnants of the barbaric punishments of former times, castigation with cudgels and cat-o-nine-tails, chaining to the car and shaving the head, which were still inflicted for certain offenses on persons exiled to penal settlements or to the mines. Castigation with cat-o-nine-tails and even with cudgels not infrequently ended in death and was one of the harshest forms of the death penalty, being death by torture. Only the most hardened prison administrators could stand the terrible sight of the death of human beings under the measured blows of the cat-o-nine-tails."

COMMISSION IS NOW IN BERLIN

Leaves The Hague and is Received At The German Court.

Berlin, July 16.—The United States international exchange commission arrived here yesterday from The Hague and was received today by the under secretary for foreign affairs, Dr. von Muehlberg. The interview lasted half an hour. The commission expects to remain in Berlin for a fortnight. A pamphlet is being prepared to explain to the German experts the American government's plan.

The German newspapers have hitherto manifested little interest in the commission. All expressions on the subject indicate the belief that the American propositions are impracticable.

The members of the Mexican commission arrived here today to confer with the German government upon the same subject. A German commission has already been nominated to confer with the Mexicans. It consists of Dr. Koch of the Reichsbank who is president, and six members, including Dr. Arthur Salomonsohn of the Disconto Gesellschaft and Dr. Heffterich, a well-known monetary writer.

Miquelon, St. Pierre-Miquelon, July 16.—The British steamer Monterey, which sailed from Montreal July 10 for Bristol, is ashore west of Point Plan. It probably will be a total wreck, but speedy assistance may save a portion of the cargo of cattle. The passengers were put ashore this morning in a dense fog. Wrecking steamers are being sent from St. Johns.

WOMAN TRIES TO BURN HERSELF

Crazed by Religion, She Chooses a Most Horrible Method of Death.

St. Petersburg, July 16.—A local newspaper relates that a young woman was found on the beach of the Gulf of Finland behind the Sergievo monastery, twelve miles from this city, with terribly burned feet and legs. The unfortunate woman had on a monk's cassock. She said she had been reading religious books and had concluded that self-incineration was the only sure means of salvation. She attended a religious service at the monastery and then calmly prepared her funeral pile. She was unable to bear the pain of the flames and tried to return home, but was helpless. She remained forty-eight hours where she had fallen before being found. Her life may be saved.

BLUEBEARD IS FOUND GUILTY

Alfred Knapp, Self-Confessed Strangler of Five Women, Is Convicted.

HE WILL BE KILLED

Has Spent Most of His Time in Jail and Penitentiary—Is a Degenerate.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)
Hamilton, Ont., July 16.—A verdict of murder in the first degree was brought in today by the jury in the case of Alfred Knapp, the self-confessed strangler of five women. Knapp took the news coolly and seemed unmoved by the verdict. He had expected to be acquitted on the charge of insanity.

To be Executed
Knapp, or Bluebeard as he is called, will probably be executed. He has spent two-thirds of his life in jail or in prison and has been sent up for many minor crimes. He assaulted several women and since early childhood has been a fiend degenerate as regards women.

Arrest
He was arrested in Indianapolis for the murder of his wife, Hanna Goddard, and confessed to killing Emma Littleman, a young girl in Cincinnati; May Eckert, Cincinnati, his wife, Jennie, Cincinnati, Ida Gehardt, a girl in Indianapolis, and his wife, Hanna. The latter is the crime he was convicted for.

UNCLE SAM HAS GRABBED ISLES

England Learns That Twenty Islands Off Borneo Have Been Seized.

Seized.
London, July 16.—A rumor was current in the lobby of the house of commons to the effect that some United States warships had seized about twenty small islands off the coast of Borneo, which, it is understood, belong to Great Britain, and had planted the American flag on them. It is probable that a question on the subject will be asked in the house.

Lie Off Borneo.
Washington, July 16.—Some time ago a claim was made to a number of islands off the coast of Borneo by the United States on the ground that they belonged to no nation. Admiral Evans was directed by the department to send a gunboat for the purpose of making surveys and soundings. It is believed these are the islands said to have been seized by American warships.

Bought from Spain.
A plausible explanation of the reported occurrence is that the commanding officer in the Philippines simply sent one or more of his vessels and hoisted the flag of the United States over some islands near the coast of Borneo, which were purchased by the United States from Spain subsequent to the treaty of Paris, and that the sovereignty of the United States over them had been proclaimed formally.

Ceded to United States.
These were the Cagayan Sulu group, comprising one large and fourteen smaller islands, and the larger island of Palawan. These islands were not comprehended within the boundaries of the Philippine archipelago when the treaty of Paris was signed. The claim was made later, however, that they rightfully belonged to Spain, and they were formally ceded to the United States by a subsequent action of that government, and congress made an appropriation and paid the purchase price agreed on for them.

May Name Commission.
The islands of the Cagayan group are close to the Borneo coast, and the action of the American naval officials in formally raising the American flag over them, if it has been done, has no doubt given rise to the impression in the minds of those unacquainted with the real facts that the United States had seized the islands.

The Philippine group of islands, acquired from Spain as a result of the war of 1898, extends so far southward and there are so many of them that it is not unlikely an international commission will be necessary to decide the ownership of many of them.

Will Adjust Ownership.
The Philippine group also merges into the scores of small islands north of the Dutch East Indies, so that in many cases it will be difficult to determine to which nation they really belong.

Fortunately there is not likely to be much of a controversy over the disputed islands. State department officials say the ownership in all probability will be adjusted with little friction.

Mrs. R. Weinshank, widow of E. Weinshank, a prominent business man of Chandlerville, Ill., was found dead in bed at her home.

TRIP UPON THE PACIFIC OCEAN

FLOYD RIDER, OF THIS CITY, WRITES LETTER.

IN A GLASS BOTTOMED BOAT

Return Trip Was Rough, and Passengers Not So Gay—Pleasant Voyage Going.

Floyd Rider at present working in Pasadena, California, writes his brother a very interesting letter of his visit on the Fourth of July to the Cataline Islands. These islands lie just off the coast of California and are very popular as a resort. Young Rider evidently enjoyed his trip and his letter which follows is most interesting.

"You no doubt have received the card I wrote at Cataline Islands by this time but as I did not say much on that, I'll tell you a little more of my trip. We started Saturday morning, Fourth of July, left Pasadena on Southern Pacific R. R. to Los Angeles and from there to San Pedro where we took passage on the steamship 'Hermosa' and at 11 a.m. we sailed out into the mighty Pacific. The sea was not very rough on the outward voyage and we had a delightful trip. We sat up on hurricane deck and on the way we saw a whale and a school of porpoises and flying fish.

Ocean Through Glass
"We got to Avalon, Santa Cataline Island, 30 miles from the U. S. in the Pacific ocean, at 2 o'clock, and after a hearty fish dinner went and had a boat ride. Earl Osborne, brother of Floyd Osborne is working there and has care of a boat stand and we had a boat free for all day. We went out in a glass bottom boat and I never saw a more beautiful sight than we saw through the blue waters of the Pacific. Fish of all kinds swimming around among the sea weeds, kelp and sea moss. I enclose a little sample. Gold fish of all sizes from minnows up to a foot or more in length. In the afternoon, heard a fine band concert, and in the evening had fine fireworks and all the boats in the bay of which there were all kinds from a little dory up to big steamers and sailboats were all decorated with Japanese lanterns and electric lights, and some of the larger launches all formed in a parade and sailed up and down the bay, a fine sight."

Night in Tent
"We got a tent that night and had a fine sleep. In the morning took a sail up the coast to seal rocks moonstone beach, sugar loaf and more places than I can remember. Took a swim in the briny and got back to Avalon about 1 o'clock and after a dinner of fish we got ready to start back to the states. Avalon is quite a little city. Has one very large hotel, 'the Metropole'. Has all kinds of stores and curio shops, fine bathing and fishing. We saw them bringing in all kinds of fish. Baracuda, yellow tail, Jew fish and saw one large Tuna caught weighed 94 pounds, took 33 minutes to land it."

The Return Trip
"At 4:10 we boarded the steamer, Falsion with 140 souls on board, and once more started out into the blue waters of the deep, and this trip we had some fun. We no sooner got out of the bay when we began to strike the swells and the breeze was good and brisk and soon we were ploughing into a pretty good sea which made the boat roll and pitch to the extent that before we had been out half an hour, people that had started out all joyous and gay began to look sober when they couldn't stand it any longer, dived down the stairs for the cabin."

THE DOTY MILL'S NEW APPARATUS

A Grinding Machine with a Capacity of Three Tons Per Hour, Will Soon Be in Place.

A new grinding apparatus has recently been shipped to the Doty mill, and will soon be set up on the main floor. It is an "attrition mill," manufactured by the Foss Manufacturing Co., of Springfield, Ohio, makers of scientific apparatus. This mill is built on a different principle from the ordinary feed grinder and can work twice as fast as any old style mill, having a guaranteed capacity of three tons per hour. Most feed mills work on the principle of grinding or reducing the kernels of grain by squeezing them between two or more surfaces. The attrition mill does not grind the feed at all but cutting edges on two revolving circular plates which make 1,800 revolutions per minute, cut the grain or feed to the desired condition. In the older style mills the grinding has been done between three rollers, or between two stones. In the latter way especially, much power is lost or wasted. Nowadays many farmers have their own corn cobs ground with the feed. In the old style mills it is not easy to grind the pieces of cob small enough. The new way cuts the cobs so that they are almost indistinguishable from the rest of the feed.

MARBLE GAMES ARE GROWING OBSOLETE

Boys of England Do Not Play Old-Fashioned Games—Football Gains Favor.

Many of the old-fashioned boys' games are being allowed out of existence. The development of the bicycling, and the extraordinary absorption of the modern boy—not to speak of his elders—in football and to a lesser degree in cricket are killing many simple old pastimes. Tops, hoops, marbles, buttons and the like, are not the playthings nowadays of boys or all classes, as they used to be until well past the middle of the last century. Such toys are still played with in villages and in the towns to a less extent, but their use has become increasingly limited to the poor folk. This is somewhat to be regretted for simple as such implements are the games for which they are used call for no inconsiderable degree of skill on the part of the players. Each kind of game has always had its appointed season and marbles come in with the spring. In many parts of Sussex, by the way, boys and men of every age used to make a special point of playing marbles on Good Friday, but no one has yet been able to give a satisfactory reason for this particular custom.

Marbles in Literature
Games with marbles have quite a nomenclature of their own. Every one remembers the moving address of Serat. Buzuz to the jury in the cases of Bardell vs. Pickwick in which the learned counsel enlarging upon the villainy of the designing Pickwick pictured the desolation of Mrs. Bardell's once happy home. "Even the voice of the child is hushed; his infant sports are disregarded when his mother weeps; his alley torn and his 'commoners' are alike neglected; he forgets the long familiar cry of 'knuckle down' and at tippechee or odd and even, his hand is out."

A Table of Exchange
Boys usually had a recognized table of exchange. One "alley" was worth six or more "commoners." The latter had different names in different places, such as "stoneys" and "potties"—the names usually denoting some slight difference in quality. One "stone" was worth two or three "potties." Other names for common varieties were "crockerles" and "clayeyes," terms which explained themselves. The "alleys" again the "alleys" again the cherished equal value. The choicest specimens were known as "blood alleys" because they were marked with spots or streaks of red.

This game of "taw" or "ring taw" is at least two centuries old. In the Tatler of Dec. 27, 1709, Steele speaks of one who passed many hours with the little Moorish boys at a game of marbles not unlike our modern law. Later, Churchill, in the Candidate, wrote: "To whip a top or knuckle down a taw" and Cowper in his "Tirocinium," described the return of a man to his old school where his heart is touched to find on "The wall on which we tried our graving skill."

The very name we carved subsisting still; The bench on which we sat while deep employed. Though mangled, hewed and hewed, not yet destroyed; The little ones, unbuttoned, glowing hot. Playing our games and on the very spot. As happy as we once, to kneel and draw. The chalky ring, and knuckle down at taw."

The "taw" seems to have originally been the name for the marked line, from which the players shot at the marbles in the ring; then the name was given to the game itself, and lastly, in the shape of alley taw or "alley tor" to the large marble, which play so important a game in the hand (or rather on the knuckles) of a dextrous shot. An expert player shoots his "taw" so that describing a curve it falls directly on the marble aimed at, driving it and possibly others out of the ring. Itself rebounding or cancrading from it with sufficient force to be also carried without the ring.

Another Marble Game
Another game which seems almost to have died out in the neighborhood of London is "hole and taw" or "3 holes" or "knucks," says the London Globe. The holes, three in a line are about six or eight feet apart and each twice or three times up and down is the game. Whoever completes it first is the winner, the players having power to drive one another away as in croquet, which game "knucks" resembles in several respects. This three-hole game is still highly popular in the north of Ireland. Loafing "corner boys" and carmen waiting for a fare can be seen playing any day in Belfast. Another game with marbles is "chuck-taw" in which one boy throws his marble or "taw" a yard or two in front of him; the next chucks his marble at the one thrown down, but if he misses the first player picks up his marble and chucks it in turn at his opponent's, and so the game carries the players along the road. A guessing game is played with marbles as with many other things. One boy dives into his pocket and brings out as many marbles as he chooses, and holding out his closed fist, palm downward, challenges his opponent to guess how many. In Cornwall they call this "Ship sail, sail fast. How many men on board?"

But Cornish folk seem to have a marble vocabulary of their own. Miss Courtney, a diligent collector of lore from the land of the Lyonesse says that the young fishermen in West Cornwall play a game called "towns" and "boys who hit their nails are looked with just contempt and are said to 'fire Kirby.' When two are partners and one in playing accidentally hits the other's marble he cries out, 'No custance' meaning that he has a right to put back the marble struck; should he fail to do so it would be out of the game. To steal marbles is to "strakey" "Other parts of the country, no doubt, have their own technical terms.

No declaration of dividends is expected to be made at the present time. Improvements to be made on the road, during the coming year will not be extensive, owing to the uncertainty of material and labor.

DIED IN ALASKA: SOUGHT FOR GOLD

Former Janesville Man Succumbed to Disease in a Distant Mining Camp.

Hiram H. Hawkins, once of Janesville but for the past year an Alaska gold-seeker, died at Rampart City, June 6, of cancer of the throat. Mrs. A. H. Barnes, his sister, has just received a letter bearing tidings of his death.

Mr. Hawkins was with his brother at the time of his death. The brothers had engaged in mining together.

MARZLUFF WALLS RAZED TO GROUND

Old Factory Building at Rear of the Postoffice, Was Torn Down by the Fire Department.

Blocks and tackles hitched to the fire and wind scarred walls of the Marzluff factory ruins completed the work of destruction yesterday afternoon, and the building is now level with the ground.

Since the fire, two years ago, the walls of the building have not only served no good purpose, but have been a source of danger. The miniature hurricane which visited the city last week made the walls even more infirm.

The services of the fire department were enlisted, and after cables and wrecking hooks had been attached to the building a steady pull brought the walls to the ground.

The crash of the falling brick nearly resulted in a serious bunch of runaways. Several teams were standing in the post office alleyway and were quieted with difficulty.

A. H. Krueger of Toledo, O., a clerk in the post office, was killed by being run over in the street by an automobile.

BIG PROPOSITION FOR A FACTORY

THE M. D. WELLS SHOE COMPANY LOOK AT JANESVILLE.

WOULD ESTABLISH A PLANT

The Terms Are Not Hard, and the Deal Would Be a Big One

From letters received by C. S. Jackson from the M. D. Wells Shoe Co. of Chicago and interviews with the president of the company it is probable that with certain inducements the Wells company might decide to locate their large factory in Janesville. Should this come about and the factory be located here it would mean that from a hundred and seventy-five thousand to two hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars would be distributed each year among persons living within the limits of Janesville and more money in distribution would mean more prosperity for the city.

Their Proposition
The M. D. Wells company have for many years secured the contract of labor from the convicts at Wau-pun. This year they did not take the contract as they have discovered that contract prison labor is not pleasing to the general public in this present day of labor difficulties. They have a large factory employing from five hundred to eight hundred hands at DeKalb, Illinois. They also have a factory employing four to seven hundred men at Wau-pun. This is the factory that would be moved here and it would mean that aside from the one hundred and fifty skilled heads of departments who could be brought here the rest of the employees would all be Janesville residents or families who moved here because there was work.

What They Want
The company has made an offer to Fond du Lac that they move there providing they can have a building built for them with 100,000 feet floor space. They want the building erected, but agreed to take a ten-year lease of it and pay five per cent, of the cost of building as rental each year. This offer, it is understood, would be made to Janesville if desirable. Thus far the Wells company have not yet decided on Fond du Lac and the proposition is open to Janesville.

Other Propositions
Another prominent Janesville man has been approached by the same company regarding the proposition and asked if he would care to make any inducements to the company but decided as Mr. Jackson had been conducting the deal thus far he would leave it to him to finish.

Great Opportunity
It is a great opportunity for Janesville. It would mean the establishment of a gigantic boot and shoe concern here that would rival the largest houses in the east. The Wells company have for years been known as one of the largest manufacturers of boots and shoes in the country and their trade compels them to keep thirty salesmen on the road all the time. It would mean that more houses would have to be erected for the workmen and this would mean a boom in the building line. It would mean employment to hundreds of laborers in the erection of the plant and Janesville would be a busy place for a year to come making ready for the big concern to start work.

Goten Talks.

"I was in Fremont, Neb., recently," said William E. Evenson, of Janesville, "and had a most peculiar experience. As I alighted from the train I saw a street car with a mule attached standing near by, and as it appeared to be the only conveyance to take me to the business district, says the Milwaukee Sentinel, I boarded the car and took a seat. No one appeared upon the scene for fully half an hour. Then a man in blue jeans and straw hat of ancient aspect poked his head in the door and inquired:

"Want to go up town, stranger?" "That is my desire," I replied. "Well, take a whip and hit the old mule a crack and you'll get there all right. The track ends right in the center of the business parts and the critter 'll stop when he comes to the end of the line."

"Don't they have any drivers on this line?"

"None. That is ter say, they don't allers have a driver, when he gets sick."

"How do they get their money out of it?"

"Most folks is honest enough to drop a nickle in the box, and them as ain't gets their ride for nuthin'."

"I dropped a nickle in the slot, hit the mule a crack with the whip, and arrived in the business district of the city in due time without any further difficulty."

ANOTHER TALK ON THE HORSE

Second Theory as To How That Faithful Animal Should Be Cared For.

During periods of excessive heat when work horses in the fields or upon the streets are liable to suffer from sunstroke or "overheating" much can be done by the owner to lessen the likelihood of an attack. Seeing that affected horses are usually those that are sick or "soft" every possible means should be taken to prevent indigestion and fit the animal to withstand labor in hot weather. Horses under five years of age are more apt to suffer than seasoned, adult animals; hence should be worked lightly during hot weather, as should new purchases and horses being acclimated in a new location. Indigestion the common forerunner of sunstroke, is indicated by dullness, sluggishness, thick urine, panting at light labor, sweating, in stable and the changeable character of the manure which is normal some days and again clay-colored, mucous-covered or an undigestive, offensive mass. When so affected it is extremely dangerous to work the animal in extra hot weather. Slight change of food, more care in feeding, rest and simple correctives are required in such cases and preventive measures may be adopted as follows: Feed hay night and morning only; give drinking water before meals and in small sips often when at work; prefer clean soft water to that rendered "hard" by the presence of lime salts which tend to derange the stomach; remove harness at noon and allow sufficient time for rest and mastication of food; groom skin thoroughly once daily; feed sound food; avoid corn in summer as it is heating; prefer sound old oats, which repair waste of tissue and promote vim and endurance; avoid sudden changes of food and do not feed heated green grass or clover; cleanse stable daily, ventilate perfectly; screen door and windows; remove manure piles from vicinity of stable; feed fresh food each meal. Shade horse's head when at work; avoid heavy wet sponge; if possible do not work three horses abreast, as the middle horse suffers thereby and is most liable to sunstroke; where such combination can not be avoided, change horses often to afford as much relief as possible. Choose coolest hours for work and change teams often during sultry moist weather when thunder storms are prevalent.

GRAVEL PIT IS VERY BUSY NOW

Five Hundred Loads a Day Are Being Taken Out by Workmen.

Out at the gravel pit of the Knickerbocker ice company a new line of digging has been commenced. The ropes and tackle of the big trolley shovel, which has a capacity of 1 1/2 cubic yards of gravel, have been moved to one side of the present cutting in the gravel bank and a new start made. The shovel has been carrying the gravel from the old pit to the top of the building, a distance of nearly four hundred feet and averaging about 450 loads per day. The new digging is started nearer the hoppers so that the present capacity of the mill is over 500 loads every day on an average. The sand and gravel now being taken from the pits is of a better quality than was found in the old cutting.

FAST BACKING IS CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Engineers Are Warned Against Accidents Attendant on This Custom—Curves Dangerous.

A large number of accidents have been caused on many railroads in the last few months by engines backing up at a reckless rate of speed. The attention of all engineers on the North-Western line has been called to the fact with the view of keeping down to a safe limit the speed of engines when in the back motion, particularly on some portions of the line where there is much grade or where sharp curves are located. Officials of the road state that with due care it is thought there will be no occasion to record any casualties on this division.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday July 16, 1863.—The Prospect.—The union cause looks bright and cheerful everywhere, except in the north. Gen. Banks has captured Port Hudson, and the Mississippi is open and free from its source to its mouth. The rebel hordes of Lee are reported falling back demoralized and discouraged.

We learn that the remains of Henry Wingate, of the 12th battery, were interred in a metallic case, about three miles from Vicksburg, near the old camping ground of the battery.

New York.—We understand the retreat of Lee's army is now a rout, and its spirit is utterly broken. These places at the disposal of the federal government ample force to overawe the rioters in this and other cities. No doubt need be entertained that the power of the government will soon be shown in this matter.

We are informed that arrangements are being made to celebrate in this city tomorrow evening the

REUNION WILL BE AT CAPITAL CITY

Veterans of the Twelfth and Sixteenth Regiments Will Come Together at Madison.

Arrangements have been made for a joint reunion at the capitol in Madison, on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 21st and 22nd, of the survivors of the 12th and 16th Wisconsin regiments. The date chosen will be the 29th anniversary of the Battle of Atlanta, a fight in which the two regiments took active part. The first meeting will be held at 2 o'clock on Tuesday in the Assembly Chamber, when Governor La Follette and Mayor Groves will give addresses of greeting and welcome, after which the men of each regiment will hold a meeting of their own.

In this evening a big campfire will be kindled in the Assembly Chamber around which the following addresses will be given:

"The Battle of Atlanta"—General George E. Bryant.

"The Victors—the Boys in Blue"—Rev. Dr. Bolton, Madison.

"Being a Guest of the Johnnies."—David J. James, Richland Center.

There will be other talks, recitations and music. General Bryant was the Colonel of the 12th and commanded the brigade on the second day of the battle. Dr. Bolton is a veteran of two wars, the civil and the Spanish. David James was taken prisoner at Atlanta.

On Wednesday morning business meetings will be held, and then a pilgrimage will be made to Old Camp Randall. Altogether, it will be a pleasant gathering. Everything indicates a large attendance of the old boys and their families. The wives, sons, daughters and grandchildren of the veterans are especially invited to attend this reunion. Also comrades of all other regiments are asked to consider themselves members of either the 12th or 16th on that occasion.

The ladies of the Relief Corps in Madison will set tables in the capitol in order that all may eat together. Meals will cost twenty-five cents. Wisconsin railroads will, on Tuesday sell tickets to Madison and back at one and one-third fare, tickets good for two weeks. Company F of the Sixteenth was recruited near this city.

Marriage of Miss Lena Knipshild and Nelson J. Harrington—Pretty Ceremony.

Miss Lena Knipshild was wedded to Nelson J. Harrington last evening, the ceremony being unusually impressive. The marriage occurred at the Oak Lawn avenue home of the bride's parents. Rev. W. A. Goebel was the officiating clergyman.

Palms and cut flowers gave a festive appearance to the pretty home. The bride was handsomely gowned in tan pongee, trimmed with lace. The bride and groom left on a short wedding trip. Mr. Harrington is one of Uncle Sam's mail clerks in the railway department.

Negro Boys Emulate Mob.

opening of the Mississippi by the victories of Generals Grant and Banks. The arrangements will be announced in tomorrow's paper. Among them, we understand, is the ascent of two balloons, prepared by Mr. W. A. Reynolds.

New York, July 15.—The mayor has issued a proclamation announcing that the riot has partially subsided; that the remnants of the mob now only seek plunder, and calls upon the citizens to form patrols, and that all lines of omnibuses, railways and telegraph must be put in full operation immediately, and be protected fully by the militia.

The following losses have been made by competent officers of Lee's losses since crossing the Potomac: 5000 killed, 9000 wounded and prisoners, 9500 uninjured prisoners. It is known that 6000 wounded have since been carried over the river. Desertions will probably reach 3000, making a total of 33000. A number of deserters from our army have arrived in camp and will be summarily punished.

Wheat and Corn Both Went Up Following Reports That Came In.

Wheat and corn went up on the Chicago board of trade yesterday. Wheat advanced $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ to $\frac{3}{4}$ ¢ under fair export demand and unfavorable crop reports from some localities, while receipts at primaries are light, as also are exports. Flour was unchanged. Corn ruled $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ higher. Visible supply gained 444,000 bu and 44,000 bu according to Bradstreet's. Public cables were more favorable, and Liverpool futures gained $\frac{1}{4}$ ¢ per cental, while Paris was lower since the previous quotation of last Saturday. London and Antwerp were quiet and steady. English country markets were firm, while French enjoyed a holiday. Weather in England fine, with prospects of cold. Broomhall reported heavy rains in Bralla district of Roumania and hot weather since harvest opened; small offerings of wheat arriving at that port. New reported 125,000 bu No. 2 red worked for Lisbon. Minneapolis prices decreased 475,000 bu in four days. St. Louis reported exporters buying September and a strong demand from country houses. Minneapolis reports harvest in North Dakota in ten days and will have the largest crop ever raised there. A Missouri report says they will not raise over 17,000,000 bu wheat. Manitoba wheat estimate is for 50,000,000 bu, against 45,000,000 in 1902. Receipts at primaries 423,000 bushels and shipments 151,000 bu, against 886,000 bu and 156,000 bu, in 1902. Excellent, reasonable weather. There is rain in Missouri and Southern Illinois; also in Manitoba. Temperature extreme north 52°-64°. It is cloudy and warm in Kansas and Southwest. The latest official report of the minister of agriculture estimates the yield of the wheat in Hungary, at 29,600,000 metric centners, rye at 12,120,000 and oats at 11,100,000. (A metric centner is equivalent to 440, 92 lbs.) A Duluth message quotes the Bottineau United States land commissioner as saying that he drove 600 miles, and that more than half a wheat crop is impossible under most favorable weather conditions. With no rain this week, not over one-fourth crop.

COUNTRY OF PANAMA

LAND THROUGH WHICH BIG DITCH IS TO BE CUT.

Immense Amount of Preliminary Work Necessary Before Actual Operations Can Be Commenced—Sanitary Experts Have Planned Campaign.

(Special Correspondence.)

If the notice should appear in the papers calling for 30,000 men to build the Panama canal, there would be a scramble for jobs the like of which has never been known. For some reason most men would rather "go somewhere" to work than be satisfied with a job at home, and in this case the opinion seems to prevail that there is no time to be lost; that as soon as the Colombian government agrees to the transfer of the concession from the French company to the American authorities, the dirt will begin to fly before the ink gets dry on the treaty.

As a matter of fact, the real work on the canal will not begin for from one and a half to two years after the final negotiations between the United States government and the Colombian congress are completed, so it will not be advisable for anyone who intends to go there to think about giving up his present job, or to let his boss get an inkling of his intention to quit. It is estimated that about 20 per cent of the total expenditure (nearly $25,000,000) will be used in getting ready. The most thorough and comprehensive arrangements will be made in engineering, policing, sanitation and general contingencies. Without this preliminary work three out of five men who go there would never come back. Panama is dirty and foul beyond description. Swamp and jungle ooze with poison, and the very air is freighted with death.

To break this slender rib of soil and rock, and thus shorten the path of ocean travel has been a dream of centuries, and the effort has already cost so many lives that the world would be shocked if it knew the truth. The French lay their failure to swindle, but the one great obstacle has always been the dreadful fevers, which attack the workmen and cause them to die like flies. Pestilence must be overcome, or the big ditch will never be put through.

The American sanitary officers are the most skilled disease fighters in the world. Wherever they have tried their hand they have brought the death rate tumbling down in a manner that was little short of marvelous. They will surely win in Panama, for they are planning the greatest campaign that science has ever inaugurated. They will pave the way for our army of laborers and skilled artisans, and make it possible for them to complete the task that will stand as one of the greatest accomplishments of man. But until our sanitary experts say come, the average American had better hold down his job at home. The most of us have no idea what a good place this country is to stay in until we have tried living abroad for awhile.

When the work of construction finally gets under way the least number of men whose services will be required is estimated at 30,000. These will consist of unskilled labor by the thousands, as well as skilled laborers of almost every kind. There will be places for electricians, engineers, stonemasons, stonecutters, plumbers, bricklayers, wireworkers, tinsmiths, pattern makers, carpenters, painters, blacksmiths, steel workers, iron workers, expert accountants, doctors, nurses, druggists, clerks, overseers, railroad men, cooks, waiters, telegraph operators, photographers, stenographers, laundrymen, etc., etc.

It has not been determined whether the government will do the work or whether a large amount of it will be done by contract. In the former case the government will employ the help and furnish all supplies, providing transportation for the people and sending all provisions on transports. In this event the arrangements will also include living quarters. There are hundreds of houses that will be included in the transfer of the property and an important part of the preliminary work will consist of putting these in order. Additional accommodations will be provided as they are needed.

The plan of inaugurating the big project is already under way. We have in Panama at present a commission, headed by Admiral Walker, among the members of which are two army engineers and two civil engineers. The nature of their work is entirely preliminary, the most important feature of it being, of course, the formulation of the sanitary crusade.

The work of the present company is being watched, and estimates of its value being prepared.

There are about 25,000 people in the City of Panama, about 3,000 in Colon and several thousand more living along the line of the railroad and the route of the canal. When Uncle Sam puts his wunt ad for 30,000 men in the papers, and ships them down to the isthmus, along with the thousand and one accessories to such an undertaking; when the thousands of Toms, Dicks and Harrys who always tramp close on the heels of every big movement, get on the ground, each one with his own little scheme for getting the other fellow's money, this little forty-nine-mile strip of fever-ridden

$25,000,000 IN FIVE MINUTES.

Greatest Loser on Record Dies in a Garret in London Slum.

In the grimy garret in a London slum there died the other day the only man who ever succeeded in losing $25,000,000 in five minutes' time.

His name was Henri Thibault. For years prior to his death he had eked out a precarious subsistence as a translator and teacher of languages. Yet thirteen years previously he had been the prime mover in the great copper corner, the collapse of which shook to its foundations the French financial world.

Thibault's idea was to secretly buy up the world's available supply of copper, and wait for the inevitable rise. And he came near to succeeding.

From his office in Paris he controlled, through his agents, the markets of London, Berlin and Vienna, and in all of them he purchased every pound of copper that was offered.

The result was quickly apparent. On July 1, 1887, "H. C. B.'s" (best Chili bars) were selling at $200 a ton. By June 1 they had risen to $260, and the rise continued steadily until the middle of December, 1888, when the unheard-of price of a fraction over $500 a ton was being asked and obtained.

Then came the collapse. Thibault had sunk all his own money in the venture, all he could borrow, all he could beg, and still, from all sorts of odd and unexpected corners of the world copper came pouring in.

As soon as he ceased buying he had, of course, to commence selling, and this hastened and accentuated the inevitable end. By March 1 the price had dropped to less than it was when Thibault commenced operations.

Altogether the gigantic gamble cost him $50,000,000, of which sum fully one-half was lost between noon and five minutes past on Feb. 28, 1889, when the bottom dropped out of his corner.—Stray Stories.

LIGHTNING RUNG CHURCH BELL.

Electric Bolt Badly Damages Edifice at Philadelphia.

Lightning struck the steeple and rang the bell in the tower of the Diamond Street Baptist church in a recent storm. A portion of the steeple was split, and the lightning rod was melted in parts. There was a brief pause following the descent of the electric bolt against the church, then came a crash of thunder that startled the neighborhood for two squares on every side. Windows shivered and men and women, believing their own homes had been struck, rushed trembling into the street. Those living in the square where the church is situated heard a single and heavy stroke of the bell. The whole town quivered with the shock. On the Thirty-first street side of the edifice a shower of broken stones and mortar fell, terrorizing for the moment several pedestrians, who were hurrying homeward to get out of the rain which at that moment was coming down in torrents. Persons who had seen the lightning strike felt sure that the church was on fire, although no blaze was discernible. The impression grew among the spectators, and a little later the excitement was intensified when fire engines, hose carts and hook and ladder trucks came dashing by, but none of these stopped at the church. A superficial examination of the church in the darkness did not reveal any great damage.—Philadelphia Press.

Power of Jewish Financiers.

The reported threat of Jewish financiers to retaliate upon Russian stocks for the persecution of their brethren recalls Bismarck's surrender before a similar menace. It was in 1866, when the Prussian government demanded an indemnity of $25,000,000 from the city of Frankfurt. The head of the house of Rothschild there sent word to Bismarck that if an attempt were made to enforce the levy the Rothschilds would break every bank in Berlin. Knowing the power behind the threat, the man of blood and iron yielded.

START RUN ON WISCONSIN BANK

Listeners on 'Phone Line Force Institution to Close Its Doors.

La Crosse, Wis., July 15.—The Farmers and Mechanics' bank of Bangor, Wis., has been placed in the hands of the state bank examiner. Its failure is ascribed to the curiosity of the patrons of a local telephone exchange. A short time ago a stockholder visited the bank, and the fact that he was looking over the books was telephoned to some party interested. The telephone message was sent over a "neighborhood" line, and it happened that everybody on the line was listening. As a result there was a run on the bank which it was unable to withstand.

HERE AT HOME

Janesville Citizens Gladly Testify.

It is testimony like the following that has placed "the old Quaker remedy" so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Janesville citizen:

Mr. L. Lawrence of 408 S. Franklin St. engineer at the Janesville Electric Co., says: "Seven years ago I injured my back by falling through a bridge near Afton into the rock River. I was on a traction engine, its weight broke through and the whole thing went into the stream. Since that time my back has ached by spells sometimes very severely. If I caught cold it settled in my kidneys and if I brought a strain on my back lifting the result was a bad back ache and sharp twinges of pain in my loins. I procured Doan's Kidney pills at the People's Drug store and after I used them I was free from backache. I am in better health than at any time since falling through the bridge."

Sold for 50 cents per box, by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

THIRD TERM

A year ago The Gazette worked against the renomination of the Governor. Two of its opponents in the newspaper field were the Oshkosh North-Western and the La Crosse Chronicle. Today these two papers are using many of the same arguments we used a year ago. The following is from the Oshkosh North-Western:

A very able and pertinent article, taken from the La Crosse Chronicle on the third term project, is republished elsewhere in this paper, and it states some features of the case in such a clear and comprehensive manner that it deserves more than passing notice. In the first place, the Chronicle points to the "irritation" caused by the third term agitation, which describes the situation to a nicety. Moreover the Chronicle submits that although the people of this state are becoming somewhat used to political irritants, there is a possible danger that too copious doses, or too much prolongation of the aggravation may be expected to produce an inflammation, and then an ulceration of the body politic, so that reason and common sense call for a diagnosis of the case before the final stage has been reached, and the application of the proverbial ounce of prevention rather than a pound of cure. In other words, the republican party of this state is showing symptoms of having swallowed something that does not agree with it, and if a spell of genuine indisposition is to be avoided it is time to give more careful attention to the patient's diet, with the chances of thereby saving the necessity of swallowing a dose of nasty medicine later on.

The third term project is in itself objectionable to the great majority of voters in this state, and the reasons therefor are set forth by the La Crosse Chronicle in a cogent and convincing manner. Nothing less than the pure and wholesome desire to advance the public good and welfare should serve as a sane excuse for breaking this time honored precedent, and from the days of the immortal Washington there has been a well founded and well grounded prejudice against the third term idea. In regard to public offices of an executive nature. As the Chronicle says, "The day that sees the step from two to three terms is not far from the day that will see it advance to four, five, six and then life tenure." And none will question the assertion or attempt to dispute it, that this is treading toward a policy that is "dangerous" and un-American.

Following the Chronicle's line of argument, however, the next point made is one that will interest every voter in the state. It submits these questions and proceeds to answer them according to its own light and understanding. The questions are as follows:

"Why does La Follette want a third term?"

"Do the people want him to have a third term?"

"If so, why do people want him to have a third term?"

The third question in order is naturally dependent on the answer of the second, and neither of them can be definitely solved at present, or until the voters have an opportunity to make their wishes in the matter known. But in reply to the first question, as to why the governor wants a third term in his present position. The Chronicle is outspoken in declaring that it is plainly his intention to use it as a stepping stone to a place for himself in the United States senate. And with all the evidence at hand there is apparently some reason for this supposition which, if it constitutes an injustice to the governor, can be easily removed by a frank and open statement from him declaring that he has no intention of seeking a senatorship in this manner and would not accept it under those conditions. But if the governor has an eye on the senatorship and believes that it will aid him in this plan to hang on to the governorship until he can slip from one office to another, a mere suspicion of that fact would be enough to arouse a general antagonism in the state, and one that would soon block the third term project. For although the people of Wisconsin, have thus far shown a warm support for the political reform issues championed by the governor there is no apparent reason why he should personally be made the high factotum in the politics of the state, with the opportunity of permanent control, and direction of all future politics and operations.

In fact the opposition to Gov. La Follette as a third term governor, extends above and beyond any antagonism toward the politics he has thus far advocated and is based on the logical and indisputable theory that the party is greater than the man. And with the knowledge that the work which the governor started out to perform has been practically completed comes the further conviction that it is high time to consider the good welfare of the party as a whole rather than the further political success of the man. The governor has triumphed in his plans and deserves due credit for the good he has accomplished, but it is beyond dispute that friction and factionalism have crept into the party, hampering its usefulness and endangering its future success. In order to alleviate this sore spot and restore the condition of harmony so generally desired by all, it appears necessary to choose a new state leader, one who will command the United confidence and support of the entire party, and take up the work where it is laid down by the present governor. Governor La Follette is himself a young man and can well afford to wait for further honors and preferment when the opening comes and the people need his services. And he would strengthen himself immeasurably for such future chances if he would rest contented with his present measure of success and consent to abandon his third term ambition "for the good of the party as a whole."

Those members of New York society who propose to hire an official jester for the 400 should not fail to put the plan into effect. The 400 would derive amusement watching the jester. Also think of the fun the jester would have watching the 400. We nominate Chauncey Depew for the office.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW COMET?

LOOK TONIGHT ALONG THE MILKY WAY.

LOOKS FUZZY TO THE EYE.

It Has Two Long Tails, and Daily Increases in Brightness—Can Be Distinguished.

Many Janesville people are stargazing after the new comet, which is flashing across the sky, being now in the constellation Cygnus in the border of the milky way.

The comet was discovered by Borrelli at Marseilles some three weeks ago and has since been under observation at various points. It promises to be unusually interesting. Its brightness is rapidly increasing until now it is as easily visible as a fourth magnitude star, that is, about a quarter as bright as the polar star. It is hurrying northeastward at the rate of four degrees a day.

Its Orbit
The orbit of the comet has been computed by Professor Perrenne. It is moving in a parabola in such a way that its nearest approach to the sun will occur August 27 at a distance of about 31,000,000 miles. Its present distance from the earth is about 100,000,000 miles and from the earth about 20,000,000. To the unassisted eye the comet will appear as a hazy patch of light. An acute eye should be able to detect short tails projecting away from the sun.

Observatory Points
Lick observatory photos have recorded two prominent tails, each several degrees in length. While it is always unsafe to make predictions as to how bright a comet will grow, yet there is little doubt that this one will be a fairly conspicuous object in the evening sky. Many observers expect it to be the brightest comet of the past ten years.

Wisconsin Lens
Dr. Comstock of Washburn observatory at Madison has several times trained his telescope upon the new comet. He says: "It is fairly bright to the naked eye and will probably continue to increase in brightness. Whether or not it will do so is mostly conjecture. In appearance it is fuzzy with a short tail pointing toward the south. I can't say that there is anything peculiar or remarkable about this comet. Why, it is a poor year that gives us only one or two and many a year we have from six to eight. In brightness it exceeds the ordinary comet but it scarcely holds a candle to the broad, extended, long tailed comet of 1882 which was so bright that it could be seen in plain day. Yet it is a comet and well worth seeing."

PIERSON'S WHEEL BROKE DOWN

H. A. Zerbel and Roy Pierson Raced To Beloit—Pierson's Wheel Broke—Zerbel Won.

In a spectacular motor cycle race from this city to Beloit, H. A. Zerbel of Milwaukee this morning defeated Roy Pierson of Janesville. To be more accurate, the race had a spectacular start but the finish was decidedly otherwise.

The river road was chosen for the course. The two wheelmen had barely passed the city limits when an awful odor of gasoline arose in the vicinity of Pierson's machine.

An investigation showed that the gasoline was leaking. Pierson pushed on and ended the race, but not until fifteen minutes after Zerbel had reached the goal.

Zerbel's time was thirty-four minutes.

The race was designed as much as a test of the comparative merits of the two machines as of the skill of the riders. Pierson's is a Mitchell, of Racine make, while Zerbel handles a Merkel, made in Milwaukee. As a test the trial was not regarded as successful by either of the contestants, and the race is to be repeated.

They acers left this city at 9:25. Zerbel ending the race just before the hour.

MAKING READY FOR RUSH SEASON

Factories and Warehouses Are Laying Plans for the Busy Fall Work.

Grain buyers have been having a quiet time for the past few weeks but are preparing now for the fall rush. The Spoon elevators will be overhauled, the bins cleaned, machinery repaired and put in shape for work next month.

The Blodgett mill shut down yesterday morning for about a week and will undergo general repairs. Shipping from flour in stock will go on, however. The harvest has already started and in a week or so the new rye crop will begin coming in. All the elevators in the city are taking advantage of the quiet season to prepare for the rush of fall work which will soon be here.

At the Milwaukee Elevator company branch here much trouble has been experienced on account of the river being unusually high, and partially flooding the cellar. The foundations have now been made water tight, however, and no further trouble is expected.

The Doty mill will have the new machinery installed soon and will be ready by the first of the month. It is not expected that the rush of business this year will come much before September first.

Mrs. Charles Wright and daughter Lealie and Miss Agnes Morlissy have left for Koshkonong lake.

GROCERS HELD PICNIC TODAY

WENT TO ESTHER BEACH FOR ANNUAL OUTING.

THE CROWD WAS NOT LARGE

About Four Hundred Persons Availed Themselves of the Opportunity of a Day's Outing.

Fifty Janesville grocers and their families, accompanied by about two hundred friends and excursionists left this morning at eight o'clock over the St. Paul road. It was an ideal day for a picnic and one that was enjoyed by all.

At "Angle Worm Station", near Madison, the train connected with steamers on Lake Monona for Esther beach where the celebration was held. Most of the excursionists took this means of getting to the beach. Smith's orchestra of six pieces, accompanied the grocers and discoursed sweet strains during the day. At the beach there was dancing in the pavilion, music, games and other amusements.

A Ball Game
A ball game that was expected to be the leading attraction was scheduled for this afternoon at Esther beach. The game was made up of the agile grocers on one side to play against their clerks. "Cove" Vankirk was chosen captain of the grocer nine and James Clark, employed at Nash's, was the leader of the opposing crowd.

Some Present
Some of the clerks that joined in the excursion were: Will Baumann, Willie McCue, Geo. Winslow, Townsend, M. O'Brien, Carl Mable, Ed. McGee, A. Maine, Jerome Murphy, Ray Fish.

Many of the crowd visited the Capitol City and took in the sights, but the greater number preferred to remain on the lake or near the shore.

WILL DISCUSS THE VOTING MACHINES

Judiciary Committee Will Meet To Decide What Recommendation To Take to Council.

To consider, among other matters, the subject of purchasing voting machines for the use of the city, the judiciary committee of the common council will hold a special meeting this evening.

The proposition of the voting machine company has been placed before the committee, and is substantially identical with that made at the time of the last election.

The agreement is to furnish the city with the necessary machines and to accept in return, from time to time, the amount of money which the use of the machines saves. The variation in the expense of the two methods of voting occurs in the number of voting clerks required and the number of polling places, to say nothing of the cost of printing.

WILL EXAMINE THE POLICE APPLICANTS

Eligible List To Be Created For Use In Case Of Vacancies Or Emergency.

Within a couple of weeks the fire and police commissioners will probably announce examinations for positions in the police department. There are no vacancies at present, but it is desired to create an eligible list from which appointments may at any time be made.

The law provides that such a list may be made out for use of the mayor at any time when there is a call for special police, or when vacancies arise.

There have never been many applicants for police positions, partly because few have aspirations in that direction, and rather more because the majority of applicants have been unable to qualify, either in personal habits or mental equipment.

LACK OF RUBBER CLOSES FACTORY

PARKER PEN COMPANY RUNNING HALF FORCE.

CANNOT SECURE MATERIAL

The Prices Are Not Only Way Up, But None Is on the Market.

Half of the men employed by the Parker Pen company have been laid off on account of the lack of raw material with which to work. Not only has the price of rubber gone up but there is noticeable shortage in the supply. Government reports received by the Parker Pen company state that there has been a partial failure in the last para rubber crop in South America; this together with the high price that is caused, it is thought, by the manipulations of the rubber market by the trust make the raw article difficult to get at present.

Trust Rules
The rubber syndicate controls most of the supply that is grown in Central and South America. Para rubber comes from Central and South America and is the best quality on the market. The best makes of fountain pens are made from pure para rubber. There is a good grade grown also in Madagascar and another class comes from the valley of the Orinoco.

Condition Indefinite
"How long the present condition of the market will continue cannot be told," said Mr. Parker this morning. "Scrap rubber" that is left over in the making of pens now commands a high price on the market. There are several independent concerns that are fighting the trust and who use large quantities of this "scrap" in making different rubber articles. Different parts to telephone apparatus and many other things are made with a mixture of these cheaper grades of rubber. As these articles cannot profitably be made of pure rubber alone, the trust and the independent companies are fighting for the entire supply. Consequently the price paid for scrap rubber is good.

SYNOPSIS.

Chapter I.—The story opens with Alfred Bishop, a Georgia planter, closing a trade of $5,000 in mill stock for 5,000 acres of mountain land. Mrs. Bishop and their son Alan object to the trade. Mrs. Bishop's brother, Abner Daniel, tells a story. II.—The sale over. Bishop boasts that his land is on a prospective railroad. Tompkins, the former owner, has just unloaded a tract of 2,000 adjoining Bishop's. III.—Bishop goes to Atlanta to see Lawyer Perkins, who told him about the railroad. He has been deceived. The old man is so cast down that he returns without seeing his brother William or his daughter Adele, who is at her uncle's in Atlanta. IV.—Bishop has bought 20,000 acres of mountain land in all and mortgaged his plantation. Abner tells Rayburn to consult Miller, a land speculator. V.—Miller tells Alan about a dance at Darley. Alan's sweetheart, Dolly Barclay, will be there. Frank Hillhouse is attentive to Dolly. Craig, the banker. VI.—Dolly tells Alan that her father objects to his love quest. Barclay has also been caught on mountain land. VII and VIII.—Miller gives Alan cynical advice on love. Dolly's mother talks to her on her own love experiences. Dolly unhappy. IX.—Abner and Rev. Mr. Dole discuss religion. Pole Baker, the ex-moonshiner, whom Alan has reformed. X.—Abner goes to Barclay's, and Dolly talks to him of Alan. He tells Alan of his own sweetheart who died and he still loves her. Alan will hope and wait. XI and XII.—Alan goes to Miller with a project for a railroad to the land. He redeems Pole Baker from the prison gang. XIII.—Miller sends news by Dolly to Alan about his railroad project. She disputes Miller's cynical views of love. XIV.—Miller interests Tillman Wilson, president of the Southern Land and Timber company, in the mountain road. Loan of $25,000 arranged on deal finished with a verbal option for the company to take the land at $100,000. XVII and XVIII.—Miller meets Alan's sister Adele in Atlanta and is smitten. Craig's bank fails. Bishop loses his money. Dolly sends word to Alan she loves him more than ever.

CHAPTER XIX.

THAT afternoon the breeze swerved round from the south, bringing vague threats of rain. About 3 o'clock Alan, his uncle and his mother and father were out in the front yard looking at the house with a view to making some alterations that had been talked of for several years past.

"I never hear my way in anything before," Mrs. Bishop was running on in the pleased voice of a happy child, "and I'm glad you are going to let me this once. I want the new room to jut out on this side from the parlor and have a bay window, and we must cut a wide fold-in door between the two rooms. Then the old veranda comes down, and the new one must have a double floor, like Colonel Sprague's on the river, except ours will have round, white columns instead of square, if they do cost a trifle more."

"She knows what she wants," said Bishop, with one of his infrequent smiles, "and I reckon we'd save a little to let her boss the job of she don't hinder the carpenters by too much talk. I don't want 'em to put in a stick of lumber that ain't the best."

"I'm glad she's going to have her way," said Alan. "She's wanted a better house for twenty years, and she deserves it."

"I don't believe in such fine feathers," said Bishop argumentatively. "I'd a kinder rather wait till we see whether Wilson's a-goin' to put that road through. Then we could afford to put on a dab or two of style. I don't know but I'd move down to Atlanta and live alongside of Bill, and wear a champagne coat and a dickey cravat for a change."

"Then you might run for the legislature," spoke up Abner Daniel, who had been an amused listener, "and get up a law to pen up mud dogs at the dangerous part of the year. Alf, I've always thought you'd be an ornament to the giddy whirl down there. William was ever hit as green as you are when he first struck the town. But he had the advantage of growin' up an' sorter ripenin' with the place. It'd be hard on you at yore time o' life."

At this juncture Alan called their attention to a horseman far down the road. "It looks like Ray Miller's mare," he remarked. "This is one of his busy days. He can't be coming to fish."

"Railroad news," suggested Abner. "It's a pity you ain't connected by telegraph."

"They were all now sure that it was Miller, and with no little curiosity they moved nearer the gate."

"By gum, he's been givin' his mare the lash," said Abner. "She's fairly kivered with froth."

"Hello, young man!" Alan called out as Miller dismounted at a hitching post just outside the fence and fastened his bridle rein. "Glad to see you. Come in."

to show you how much we appreciate what you done for us. Brother Ab will hear me out when I say we speak of it mighty nigh ever day."

Miller wore an inexpressible look of embarrassment, which he tried to lose in the act of slapping hands all round the group, but his platitudes fell to the ground. Abner, the closest observer

"You must stay to early supper any way, Mr. Miller."

among them, already had his brows drawn together as he pondered Miller's unwelcome lack of ease.

"Bring any fishing tackle?" asked Alan.

"No, I didn't," said the lawyer, jerking himself to that subject awkwardly. "The truth is, I only ran out for a little ride. I've got to get back."

"Then it is business, as brother Ab said," put in Mrs. Bishop tentatively. Miller lowered his eyes to the ground and then raised them to Alan's face.

"Yes, it's railroad business," said Abner, his voice vibrant with suspense. "And it's not favorable," said Alan bravely. "I can see that by your looks."

Miller glanced at his mare and lashed the leg of his top boots with his riding whip. "No; I have bad news, but it's not about the railroad. I could have written, but I thought I'd better come myself."

"Adele!" gasped Mrs. Bishop. "You have heard?"

"No; she's well," said Miller. "It's about the money you put in Craig's bank."

"What about that?" burst from old Bishop's startled lips.

"Craig claims Winship has absconded with all the cash. The bank has failed."

"Failed!" The word was a moun from Bishop, and for a moment no one spoke. A negro woman at the wash place behind the house was using a battling stick on some clothing, and the dull blows came to them distinctly.

"Is that so, Ray?" asked Alan, calm but pale to the lips.

"I'm sorry to say it is."

"Can anything at all be done?"

"I've done everything possible already. We have been telegraphing the Atlanta police all morning about tracing Winship, but they don't seem much interested. They think he's had too big a start on us. You see, he's been gone two days and nights. Craig says he thought he was on a visit to relatives till he discovered the loss last night."

"It simply spells ruin, old man," said Alan grimly. "I can see that."

Miller said nothing for a moment, then:

"It's just as bad as it could be, my boy," he said. "I see no reason to raise false hopes. There is a strong feeling against Craig and no little suspicion owing to the report that he has been speculating heavily, but he has thrown himself on the protection of his church, and even some of his fellow members, who lose considerably, are standing by him."

Here old Bishop, with compressed lips, turned and walked unsteadily in to the house. With head hanging low and eyes flashing strangely, his wife followed him. At the steps she paused, her sense of hospitality transcending her despair. "You must stay to early supper anyway, Mr. Miller," she said. "You could ride back in the cool of the evening."

"Thank you, but I must hurry right back, Mrs. Bishop," Miller said.

"And Dolly—does she know?" asked Alan, when his mother had disappeared and Abner had walked to the hitching post and stood as if thoughtfully inspecting Miller's mare. Miller told him of their conversation that morning, and Alan's face grew tender and more resigned.

"She's a brick!" said Miller. "She's a woman I now believe in thoroughly—she and one other."

"Then there is another?" asked Alan almost cheerfully, as an effect of the good news that had accompanied the bad.

"Yes, I see things somewhat differently of late," admitted Miller in an evasive, noncommittal tone. "Dolly Barclay opened my eyes, and when they were open I saw—well, the good qualities of some one else. I may tell you about her some day, but I shall not now. Get your horse and come to town with me. We must be ready for any emergency."

Abner Daniel came toward them. "I don't want to harm nobody's character," he said, "but what my own kin is concerned I'm up and wide awake. I don't know what you think, but I didn't get a speck of faith in Craig hisself. He done me a low, sneakin' trick once that I latched up with. He swore it was a mistake, but it wasn't. He's a bad egg—you mind what I say; he won't do."

"It may be as you say, Mr. Daniel," returned Miller, with a lawyer's reserve on a point unsubstantiated by evidence, "but even if he has the money hidden away, how are we to get it from him?"

"I'd find a way," retorted Daniel hotly, "so I would."

"We'll do all we can," said Miller. Daniel strode into the house, and Alan went after his horse. Miller stood at the gate, idly tapping his boot with his whip.

"Poor Mrs. Bishop," he said, his eyes on the house. "How very much she resembled Adele just now, and she is hearing it just like the little girl would. I reckon they'll write her the bad news. I wish I was there—to soften the blow. It will wring her heart."

That evening after supper the family remained till bedtime in the big, bare looking dining room, the clean, polished floors of which gleamed in the light of a little fire in the big chimney. Bishop's chair was tilted back against the wall in a dark corner, and Mrs. Bishop sat knitting mechanically. Abner was reading—or trying to read—a weekly paper at the end of the dining table, aided by a dimly burning glass lamp. Aunt Maria had removed the dishes and with a little splash and clatter, was washing them in the adjoining kitchen.

Suddenly Abner laid down his paper and began to try to console them for their loss. Mrs. Bishop listened patiently, but Bishop sat in the very corner of despair, unconscious of what was going on around him.

"What's the use of talkin' about it?" he said impatiently. "What's the use of anything?"

He rose and moved toward the door leading to his room.

"Alfred," Mrs. Bishop called to him, "are you goin' to bed without holdin' prayer?"

"I'm goin' to omit it tonight," he said. "I don't feel well one bit. Besides, I reckon each posson kin pray in private according to the way they feel."

Abner stood up, and, removing the lamp chimney, he lighted a candle by the flame.

"I tried to put a moral lesson in what I said just now," he smiled mechanically, "but I missed fire. Alf's sufferin' is just unselfishness pure and undefiled. He wants to set his children up in the world. This green globe is a sight better 'n some folks thinks it is. You kin find a little speck of good in mighty nigh ever chestnut."

"That's so, Brother Ab," said his sister, "but we are ruined now—ruined, ruined!"

"If you will look at it that way," admitted Abner, reaching for his candle; "but that's a place ahead where there never was a bank or a dollar or a railroad, and it ain't fur ahead neither. Some folks say it begins here in this life."

To Be Continued.

THE UNION OF TWO ESTATES

(Original.)

Both estates were very large, the one consisting of hundreds of acres, the other of thousands. Wadsworth Towle was the owner of the smaller; Helen De Veaux would be the owner of the larger. It is an old story that young people of opposite sexes owing adjoining estates are induced by their elders to marry, thus carrying out the modern commercial plan of "community of interest," and so it was in this case. Towle went to college, then traveled abroad. Miss De Veaux, after completing her education, chafed that she had been born rich. She pined for a vocation.

One June day Towle was wandering about his grounds and before he knew it found himself in the De Veaux estates. A young woman in the costume of a trained nurse was resting on a board seat between two trees reading or studying. Towle, who had been carried through a long illness by one of this profession and had a great admiration for them as a class, raised his hat politely.

"I beg pardon," he said. "Will you tell me who is ill at the house?" She hesitated to reply.

"No matter," he added. "I have no right to pry into family secrets."

"Miss De Veaux is not very well."

"Indeed, I have—I mean we have not been informed of her illness."

"Why should you be informed?"

It occurred to Towle to play a part and learn something about the lady whose interests and his were identical.

"Well, I am Mr. Towle's business man, secretary, general utility man. He lives on the adjoining estate. Had I heard of Miss De Veaux's illness I should have suggested the propriety of his writing to express his concern. He would have directed me to write a letter, and in this case he would have copied it in his own hand and sent it to Miss De Veaux."

"Bless me, is that the way these rich people express sympathy?"

"Usually."

"But I thought there was some talk of Mr. Towle's marrying Miss De Veaux. How could he be so coldly methodical with her?"

"He has never seen her. His family has long owned the estate here, hers only a few years, during which both Mr. Towle and Miss De Veaux have been getting an education."

"I see. Doesn't he rather shrink from such a cold blooded union?"

"He's a practical fellow, with no romantic nonsense about him."

"Then he's not like Miss De Veaux, who is in full sympathy with that romance which is at the bottom of every true heart."

"I am surprised. I supposed Miss De Veaux was rather practical. I have heard that she is proposing when she comes into this estate to organize a staff to assist her in devoting her immense income to practical charity."

"Her postgraduate education, so to speak, is directed with that end in view."

Towle sat down on the other end of the board and bent the grass with his cane.

"I wouldn't suppose," he said, "that Mr. Towle would care to marry that sort of woman. They are very well to admire at a distance, but they don't work well in double harness."

"I'm quite sure Miss De Veaux wouldn't care to marry a man who would write her a letter of sympathy drawn by his business man."

Towle sat for a few minutes with a sober look on his face, then turned to the nurse with a smile. "We are settling the affairs of our betters as though they were our own. Suppose we drop them and chat about other topics—that is, if you don't mind making an acquaintance in this way."

"A trained nurse can't be squeamish."

The pair talked for an hour, then parted, to meet when the nurse came off duty for an hour of recreation the next day. In this way they kept up a series of meetings for several weeks. Meanwhile Towle had sent a letter of sympathy with flowers to Miss De Veaux, asking to be allowed to call as soon as she was able to receive callers. One day he received a formal note signed by Miss Helen Knapp, Miss De Veaux's secretary, informing him that she was quite recovered and would be pleased to see him. Towle was somewhat startled at this method of communication, but Miss De Veaux might be still too weak to do her own correspondence. He did not much care, for he had been captivated by her nurse.

When Wadsworth Towle was ushered into the drawing room where Helen De Veaux, arrayed in plain but becoming costume, awaited him he started. Miss De Veaux and her trained nurse were one and the same person.

"Pardon me sending you a note through my secretary, Mr. Towle. I should have made an exception to my rule in your case, but since your note of condolence to me came from your business man I presumed you wouldn't care. Were you aware that he sent me the flowers, or did they come under general instructions for cases of illness?"

"I have called to say," replied Towle with a quick recovery of his equanimity, "that all hope of our uniting these properties is ended. I have fallen in love with your nurse."

Miss De Veaux bent her eyes to the floor.

"The nurse you met," she said, "is only a student. She is preparing herself to organize a staff, etc., and had just come in from her studies when she found you on her De Veaux property and recognized you at once. She has been graduated, and you will know her as a nurse no longer."

And this is how the Towle and De Veaux properties came to be united."

Athletic contests, parades, great fireworks displays, patriotic meetings and religious services, a grand chorus, military maneuvers by government troops, and on the concluding day a reception to the president of the United States and other distinguished guests, all contribute to a most elaborate program.

Every energy is being employed to make the occasion typical of that spirit that has made Chicago one of the greatest cities in the world.

FOR SUNSTROKE OF THE HORSE

Some Suggestions for Prevention and Treatment of the Dumb Animal.

Symptoms of Overheating.—Horse lags, requires urging, may pass soft manure and gas, sweats but dries off suddenly, becomes weak, staggers, pants, has dilated nostrils, red eyelids and lining of nostrils, anxious countenance, weak, rapid pulse, high fever, falls. In sudden attack may fall at once, show above symptoms and die in a few minutes or hours after period of madness or unconsciousness and loud snoring. Following bad attacks brain becomes softened and animal stands with head jammed in corner, is blind, forgets to chew food and remains a "dummy," i. e., stupid, weak and useless in hot weather. Less severe attacks recovered from unfit horse for work in warm weather.

Treatment.—Do not bleed or allow bleeding to be done. Do not give acornite, belladonna, acetanilid—they are highly dangerous in amateur hands. Do not put ice-pack on the head—it tends to produce softening of the brain. Stop work immediately, remove harness, get horse into a shady place, under a tree where there is a breeze or draft of air. Administer half a pint of whiskey in equal quantity of water, or two ounces of alcohol (not wood alcohol) well diluted with water, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre and one ounce of aromatic spirits of ammonia in one quart of water. Repeat in half above doses hourly until horse revives. Add four ounces of granulated hyposulphite or soda if he is bloated; tap with trocar and canula high in right flank if bloating is excessive; and in bloated cases give rectal injections of soapy warm water hourly. High fever may be detected by hand in horse's mouth or use of thermometer in rectum. If it is 108 Fahr., or over, give one ounce saltpeter dissolved in pint of water, in addition to stimulants prescribed above and repeat in six hours. From start of treatment keep cool, wet packs on top of head and sprinkle entire body with cold water from a sprinkling can held a foot above body. A piece of ice may be placed in water thus used. If pressure water is at hand, the hose to browband of bridle and allow gentle stream of cold water to flow constantly over patient's head. On recovery feed lightly upon bran mash and a little grain, and allow rest for two weeks; do not work again in hot weather during season of attack. Where symptoms of brain softening remain after attack, give one drachm iodide of potash three or four times daily in a little water according to severity of symptoms and continue cold, wet packs to head. Feed soft, light, easily digested food.

ROCKEFELLER IS BEHIND THE MOVE

His Cunning Hand Appears in the Stock War Now on in New York.

Yesterday's New York stock market was the most excited since the panic of May 9, 1901. No support to speak of was offered and prices crumbled away to new low records. That bankers were alarmed over the continued depression in stocks is evident from the fact that a self-constituted committee of bankers has been making an exhaustive inquiry into the financial condition of certain institutions that are reported to be in trouble. The following statement was made by a member of the committee:

"We find that every trust company and bank in the city is in a sound condition and ready for any emergency. There is no cause for anxiety."

The feeling in the financial district is growing that Rockefeller interests are responsible for the heavy slump in stocks during the past few days. A banker declared that Rockefeller started to sell Milwaukee in April in anticipation of a violent decline, but it is not believed the Standard Oil party are gunning for certain people.

The steel issues were sold by brokerage houses that purchased the stock at much higher prices. A large number of selling orders came from the Pittsburgh district.

A sensational feature of the day was the heavy liquidation in General Electric, which dropped 15 1/2 points. One trader sold something like 1,000 shares for a financier who bought the stock when it was selling up in the nineties. An official declared that the earnings of the company during the last six months were equivalent to 30 per cent. on its capital. Westinghouse dropped 20 points on a single sale.

Harris, Gates & Co. and other western houses were sellers of the Grangers. In fact most of the selling of western railroad stocks of late has come from the west. It is admitted that the majority of the western traders have been on the right side of the market. They have been bearish on the situation for a week past.

James R. Keene was at his office and took a prominent part in the day's operations. It is current gossip in Wall street that he has cleared something like $3,000,000 on the bear side of the market during the last two or three months.

Notwithstanding the reassuring opinions of the bankers considerable anxiety is felt on the street over the duration of the decline. One of the most disturbing symptoms is the heavy slumps in inactive stocks, an infallible indication that long stock is coming out of the "strong boxes" of investment holders, who are embarrassed by their undertakings in other directions.

STORMS WILL HEAD COLLEGE

Ames, Iowa, July 16.—Dr. A. B. Storms, pastor of the First Methodist church of Des Moines, formally accepted the presidency of Iowa State College at the meeting of the trustees here. Dr. Storms will formally notify the trustees of his church in Des Moines of his resignation from the church to take up a new field of work. VETERAN IS VICTIM OF CANCER

Illinois Man Who Raised First Regiment in 1861 Is Dead.

Washington, D. C., July 16.—Colonel Lyman B. Cutler of Wood county, Illinois, died here of cancer. Colonel Cutler was a member of the staff of Governor Yates. During the civil war he raised the first regiment in Illinois, the Eighty-third, under President Lincoln's first call for troops. For several years he was superintendent of the municipal lodging house. During Senator Farwell's term in the Senate Cutler was an official of that body. He leaves a widow.

ALGER RESENTS THE CHARGES

Michigan Senator Denies Knowledge of Corruption in War Department.

Detroit, Mich., July 16.—Senator Alger, ex-Secretary of War, is indignant over an editorial in Harper's Weekly. The article comments on the connection of Congressman Littner with an army glove contract, and says in effect that if the methods followed by the War Department in the purchase of supplies for the army while Alger was in control should be investigated, a mass of corruption would be disclosed that would shock the country. In answer to this Senator Alger says:

"If there was any corruption in the War Department during the time when I was Secretary, or if there was any reason for thinking there might be any corruption, I knew nothing of it and I do not believe there was any such corruption."

"The assertion made here is a broad one, and the men who made these charges and the paper which published them will be held to the strictest accountability. I hope that the matter will be investigated in order that the facts may be fully demonstrated."

COLUMBIA LIKELY TO RATIFY

Chances for Favorable Action on Treaty Are Greatly Improved.

Washington, July 16.—Dr. Thomas Herran, the Colombian representative, has received advice from American friends in Bogota that the chances of the ratification of the treaty have improved greatly.

No reason is assigned for this change, but Dr. Herran thinks this is due to the fact that the constitution provides that regular sessions of congress shall be held every two years, beginning with 1886, or only in even years.

This means that the present special session of the Colombian congress can be continued as long as the president desires, and can consider only those questions put before it by the president.

He was so overwhelmed by the thought of his fortune that after he had cashed his check he put some of the money in each of his pockets, and slept that night with his clothes on, so that he could feel it whenever he awoke.

Traveling on the bottom is declared to be the most simple, safe and reliable method known to underwater navigation. There are two wheels fitted to the keel—one in advance of the other. They are three feet in diameter, with nine-inch face.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 16.—Charles W. Carleton shot Mrs. Ida Draeger and then put a bullet through his own head. Both died later. Mrs. Draeger is a divorced woman with whom Carleton had been friendly. They quarreled and she drove him away. He crept into the house from the rear and fired at Mrs. Draeger. The bullet struck her in the left side and she fell to the floor and Carleton then shot himself through the head.

Justice Brewer Says Roosevelt Dares to Aid Jews in Russia.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 16.—Associate Justice David J. Brewer of the United States Supreme court in an interview here said: "The eyes of the entire world are upon President Roosevelt to see if he has the nerve—and I want to tell you he has—to send to the government at St. Petersburg the Jewish petition of protest against the atrocities perpetrated at Kishineff."

Storming of Fort Wagner

A Fortieth Anniversary War Story

July 10-18, 1863

[Copyright, 1903, by G. L. Kilmer.] JULY 10 to 18 was a week of battle for the mastery of Fort Wagner, one of the grim guardians of Charleston harbor. Wagner became one of two models long in use at the West Point academy. The other was Sevastopol. Captain Langdon Chesler of the Confederate States engineers planned and constructed Wagner and gave his life in its defense the first day of attack. The Confederate outposts were driven in the morning of July 10 by a sudden dash of Federals almost out of the sea waves, and when the guns of Wagner opened upon the intruders Chaves started from his quarters to report for duty on the walls. He was struck by the first shell that entered the fort and instantly killed. The surprise of the Confederate outposts had been effected by General George C. Strong's brigade of 2,000 men, who had landed from boats on the southern end of the island. Every man in the garrison remained on post the night of the 10th, believing that the attack on the beach was to be the forerunner of an assault on the fort. Near daylight on the 11th the sentinels heard the advance of stealthy footsteps and made out ghostly forms of armed men slinking the sand ridges on the beach in front of the sea wall. Georgians and South Carolinians stood at their places, holding their fire until their own pickets came in.

At the heels of the retreating Confederate pickets the advance of the Federal stormers, led by Colonel Rodman, Seventh Connecticut, mounted the walls. One of them climbed to the crest in front of a 32 pounder, beside which stood Lieutenant Giehrst, commander of the 61st guard artillery. Giehrst challenged the intruder, receiving for an answer a shot from a rifle held so close that the powder blinded his eyes. The bullet clipped a lock of his hair and passed on. Suddenly the 32 pounder opened, and the entire charge of canister went through the body of the Connecticut riderman. That cannon shot was a signal for the batteries to open, and under the sudden, awful fire of columbiads, carronades, howitzers and mortars the storming column was swept from the beach. Not only Wagner's storm of iron deluged the sandy plain in front, but Sumter's shells raked the charging lines. "Aim low!" was General Strong's command as he placed himself at the head of the storming parties. Just in front of the fort was a marsh, and after struggling through that the men leaped into the ditch. A few climbed the bank and waited under the shelter of the parapet for reinforcements. But the enemy's fire became so hot that a line of battle could not survive the march. The assailants who reached the para-shaw commanded these men, and doubtless his pride and confidence were high as he beheld—

"Down the long and dusty line Teeth gleam and eyeballs shine.

"The Federal bombardment on land and sea suddenly ceased. A great calm ensued, but it was portentous and terrible. It seemed as if the heart of nature stood still, awed by a presence of the impending and fearful catastrophe. Gradually the smoke of the cannonade, swathed about the fort for hours, so far lifted that the enemy were seen debouching from their first parallel and advancing over the narrow approach between it and the fort. Then from the bombproof and sand hills the garrison quickly gathered along the ramparts. Field pieces were ranged, the artillerists double-shotted their guns, and—

"Each gunner moved by his piece with right aspect stands. The ready lanyards firmly grasped in bold, untrembling hands; So motionless in their marble calm, their stern heroic guise. They look like forms of stunted stone, with burning human eyes.

"On rushed the Federals at double quick, saluted by a simultaneous outbreak of hot shot, an implacable, concentrated fire from Sumter, Gregg and James Island. Conspicuous in the van, on came the misguided and unfortunate Colonel Shaw, his long hair waving behind him as he led his sable infants peris. A portion followed him over the ditch and planted their flag on the ramparts, where the colonel was shot and instantly killed. The others, however, could not endure the sight of that gaping ditch or the revolting sensation of winged metal viciously near. "Some of the frightened creatures ran like deer, others in the base paralysis of terror prostrated themselves upon the ground, crawling along on hands and feet. Then a grand deed which the old northmen would have called a deed of derring-do was performed by the men of the ever dominant Caucasian race, the thought of which as I write, a quarter of a century after its occurrence, makes my heart beat and my pulse throb tumultuously. Across the narrow and fatal stretch before the fort, every inch of which was swept by a hurricane of fire, a besom of destruction, the Sixth Connecticut and Forty-eighth New York charged with such undaunted resolution upon the southeast salient that they succeeded in the very face of hell, one may say, in capturing it."

The commandant of Fort Wagner, General W. B. Tullaferris, describing the charge, surprised in fervor the enthusiasm of the poet Hayne. Said he: "The Confederates, with the tenacity of bulldogs and a fierce courage aroused almost to madness, poured from the ramparts and embrasures sheets of flame and a tempest of lead and iron. Yet the intrepid assailants rushed on like the waves of the sea by whose shores they fought. They fell by hundreds, but they pushed on, reeling under the frightful blasts that almost blew them to pieces, up to the Confederate bayonets."

The Sixth Connecticut and Forty-eighth New York belonged to General Strong's brigade. It was 8 o'clock and fully dark when the assailants, to the number of 700, entered the bastion. Soon after dark Colonel H. S. Putnam charged with the Seventh New Hampshire in the wake of Strong and in the confusion and darkness assailed the very point held by Strong's men. The bastion was held for three hours, when the survivors, 140 in all, surrendered to a party of the garrison led by Captain W. H. Ryan, who was killed in the counter assault.

Continuing his description, Mr. Hayne says: "The history of war, rife with terrible conflicts, can show no more terrible strife than this. I have conversed with old Confederates in regard to the night succeeding this great assault and have remarked how seasoned veterans shudder when they recall its horrors. Wondrously the dark hours passed, and Sabbath morning dawned over the sand hills, and every detail of the scene was brought out in bold relief. Men lay in every conceivable attitude, with every conceivable expression on their countenances, their limbs bent into unnatural shapes by a fall of thirty feet.

"In the salient, on the ramparts, they lay heaped up, often three deep. Conspicuous among them was a tall, superbly formed man, an officer, whose calm features, only the more clearly cut by the chill of death, gazed toward the cloudless sky—a breathless Apollo! This was Colonel Putnam of the Seventh New Hampshire. Although, horrible to relate, the entire back of his head had been blown off, the wonderful beauty of his face remained unshadowed, evoking from his foes a sigh of pity. On the crest, surrounded by a few—a very few—of his sable troops, at the foot of the flag he had vainly planted, was the body of Colonel Shaw. One would have thought at a cursory glance that it was the corpse of a mere boy."

The assailants of the bastion represented nearly every regiment in Strong's brigade, but the most of them were from the Sixth Connecticut and Forty-eighth New York. The last named regiment entered the fight with 518 officers and men. Its death roll was 55; wounded, 112; prisoners in the bastion, 73. The loss in the Sixth Connecticut was 15 killed, 77 wounded and 40 captured. Shaw's colored regiment lost 180 out of 1,000 borne on the rolls.

RICH STRIKE OF GOLD IS MADE IN COLORADO

Sample Assays Give Returns Running From $850 to $70,175 to the Ton of Ore.

Gunnison, Colo., July 16.—A sample of gold ore that returned 3,508.76 ounces in gold, or $70,175 to the ton, is said to have been taken from the Wauvita fields in the Box Canyon district, where a strike was made which may prove the richest in the history of the state.

The greatest values are in a sugar quartz which is a red brown and white color. This, with the other pay streaks, appears at intervals through the vein. The quartz lies in streaks from two to six inches wide, and the lowest assay made on the same returned values of $850 in gold per ton.

An experienced miner asserts that he can pan from the rock as much as $300 a day. By pounding up and panning two pounds of the quartz, he says, he obtained $10 worth of gold. One piece of quartz ore weighing about three pounds was literally held together by wire gold. It contained not less than $50 in native gold. One thousand pounds of ore which was taken out of the shaft or cut runs $5,000 to $40,000 a ton.

Prospectors, ranchmen and others from the surrounding country have been flocking in by hundreds, and the ground has been covered for miles around. It is estimated that 500 claims were located the day after the strike had become known. Many others have since been located. The staked ground now runs almost from Wauvita to Plitkin, a distance from six to eight miles.

CHICAGO CONTRACTOR ALLEGES FRAUD IN BIDS

Seeks Injunction to Prevent Asylum Trustees From Building Cottages at Bartonville.

Springfield, Ill., July 16.—Failing to get the contract for the erection of eight cottages at the Illinois asylum for incurable insane at Bartonville because his bid was considered too low, Joseph Hanreddy of Chicago filed a bill for an injunction in the Circuit court of Sangamon county against State Auditor McCullough, H. M. Whitlam of Aledo and S. O. Spring of Peoria, trustees; R. Bruce Watson, state architect, and W. M. Allen of Peoria, the contractor who was given the work.

In his bill Hanreddy asks that the state auditor be enjoined from issuing vouchers for the payment of any part of the $300,000 appropriated by the last general assembly for the improvement of the asylum property. He asks that the other defendants be restrained from carrying the contract into effect, declaring that it is null and void and that it will defraud the state out of $14,000 and perhaps $25,000. Fraud is charged.
